him by the articles of incorporation and by-laws.

The complainant prayed for an injunction to restrain the defendants from putting the new regulations into force.

The demurer set up that the complaint did not state facts constituting ground for relief in equity, and that the new by-laws were valid. Judge Dear, after reviewing the charter, could not sustain the demurer.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—The discovery of a new means of causing rhythmic beats in a strip of heart muscle is announced from the University of Chicago. The stimulus is oxygen and Dr. David J. Lingle is the discoverer. He has been working on the lines of Professor Jacques Loeb's announcement made two years ago that a solution of salt would start a heart to pulsating.

It long has been known that the heart is extremely sensitive to oxygen and to carbon dioxide, the gas produced in vivified air. But heretofore the action of oxygen has been thought to be confined to the purification of the blood. Dr. Lingle shows that this gas has the power directly to sustain the beats of a strip of heart muscle removed from the body of a turtle, and to keep it going for from twenty-four to seventy-two hours. Even then the muscle stopped only because dissolution set in, and, in fact, the strip continued to beat for twenty-four hours of the seventy-two with part of it ready dead.

New York, Dec. 9.—A cable to the son from London says: The local government board has just issued an important volume giving the results of the investigation of the bubonic plague in all parts of the world for the past three years. The investigators do not expect the appearance of the scourge in severe form in Europe or America.

Repeated mistakes were made in diagnosis at the beginning of the outbreak, not only where the plague was not looked for, but in countries where officials and practitioners were alert in watching for it and believed that they were prepared to determine its appearance. The confusion arising from this was such as to almost suggest the mimicry of indigenous maladies by the plague on transplantation to new soil.
